ABOUT US

- Passion, truth and fun are the words that describe their sound.
- Ayoho are a Spanish indie electronic/urban pop quintet, winners of the Vodafone Yu Music Talent's Second Edition among more than 1100 artists. Their song "The End (Early Edition)" and their latest single "Paradise" were recently added to several Spotify playlists with thousands and millions of listeners.
- The band was born in the middle of 2014 as an acoustic project marked by the simplicity of two young boys, who one day decided to record their first song "Blank Walls" in a basement, and send it to the Vodafone Yu Music Talent (being incorporated in that moment a third member). They reached the final of the contest where they played for the first time with just one voice and two acoustic guitars, and finally and unexpectedly they were chosen as the winners of this second edition. After composing and recording their first studio album "Deference & Wonder", Ayoho initiated a number of concerts along 2015 opening for recognized Spanish artists like Izal, Dorian, Belako, etc. Their second studio album "Ikigai", produced by Raúl de Lara, was released at the end of 2017.

In the mid-2018 they signed for Son Buenos, and they are currently working on new music. Their song "The End (Early Edition)" and their brand new single "Paradise" were recently added to several Spotify playlists from the United States, Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Spain, with thousands and millions of listeners.

Ayoho are decided to take the plunge and fill the people's lives with emotions through their songs.
